University of Arizona Press. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 104 pages. Dimensions: 9.0in. x 6.1in. x 0.3in.If it can be said that Native culture is hidden behind the facade of mainstream America, there is a facet of that culture hidden even to many Native Americans. One of todays generation of outstanding Native writers, Esther Belin is an urban Indian. Raised in the city, she speaks with an entirely different voice from that of her reservation kindred as she expresses herself on subjects of urban alienation, racism, sexism, substance abuse, and cultural estrangement. In this bold new collection of poems, Belin presents a startling vision of urban Californiaparticularly Los Angelescontrasted with Navajo life in the Four Corners region. She presents aspects of Din, life and history not normally seen by readers accustomed to accounts written by Navajos brought up on the reservation. Her work reveals a difference in experience but a similarity in outlook. Belins poems put familiar cultural forms in a new context, as Coyote struts down east 14th feeling good looking good feeling the brown. Her character Ruby dramatizes the gritty reality of a Native womans life (I laugh sit smoke a Virginia Slim and talk to the spirits). Her use of Dine language and poignant descriptions of family life will remind some of Joy Harjos work, but with every turn of the page, readers will know that Belin is making her own mark on Native American literature. From the Belly of My Beauty is also a ceremony of affirmation and renewal for those Native Americans affected by the Federal Indian Relocation Program of the 1950s and 60s, with its attempts to assimilate them into the American mainstream. They have survived by remembering who they were and where they came from. And they have survived so that they might...
