BiblioGov. Paperback. Book Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. Paperback. 22 pages. Dimensions: 9.7in. x 7.4in. x 0.1in.Pursuant to a congressional request, GAO reviewed the Environmental Protection Agencys (EPA) and the General Services Administrations (GSA) efforts to improve working conditions at EPA headquarters and obtain suitable consolidated headquarters space for EPA. GAO found that: (1) workspace at the Waterside Mall complex became overcrowded as EPA staffing increased, and complaints about working conditions increased when EPA began facility renovations; (2) EPA undertook extensive cleanup operations, made ventilation system improvements, and installed new carpeting at the complex to remedy air quality and overcrowded conditions; (3) EPA moved some employees to alternative workspace because of health problems, which increased EPA operating expenses; (4) EPA spent 807, 200 operating six shuttle buses to transport EPA employees to multiple work locations and estimated that the lost work time cost it 4. 9 million per year; (5) the Office of Management and Budget proposed that EPA locate its new headquarters in the Federal Triangle Building (FTB), but the House Public Buildings and Grounds Subcommittee opposed EPA occupancy of FTB because it would change its character from an international cultural and trade center to an ordinary government office building; (6) GSA proposed that EPA and the Department of Transportation (DOT) split occupancy of FTB; and (7) if the DOTEPA housing plan is implemented, EPA will need 800, 000 square feet of additional space.
